+	1	Jessica Harris	Oxon	'That conference requests that all members of the BMA be balloted on the issue of assisted dying'
+	2	Jessica Harris	Oxon	'That conference asks the GPC to highlight the current lack of a dependable system for informing peripatetic sessional GPs about important NHS and PCT information, which has potentially serious consequences for patients, and to negotiate for PCTs be given the responsibility for creating a foolproof solution.'
+	3	Jessica Harris	Oxon	'That conference asks the BMA to review its membership subscription rates to take account of the relatively low income of salaried GPs compared with partners/contractor GPs and either: (i) add a concessionary rate for salaried GPs or (ii) add a further 'salary link' concessionary rate for members whose gross professional income is less than or equal to the maximum recommended for a full time salaried doctor by the DDRB'
+	4	Rick Godlee	Oxon	That this conference believes the Summary Care Record should be abandoned.
+	5	Rick Godlee	Oxon	That this conference believes the abolition of practice boundaries will destroy the essence of family medicine that is the bedrock of good General Practice.
+	6	Rick Godlee	Oxon	That this conference insists that Darzi clinic contracts should also be subject to cost cutting pressures affecting GMS and PMS practices.
+	7	Maggie Budden	Oxon	This conference deplores the rushed and poorly planned imposition of referral 'hubs.' These cause confusion to patients, over-ride clinical priorities and cause a vast administrative burden to practices.
+	8	Paul Roblin	Oxon	This conference believes that GPs: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Have an important role to play in safeguarding children - Are responsible for assessing their own training needs - Have no legal obligation to undergo prescriptive child safeguarding training every three years - Should resist the current epidemic of "diplomatism" within the NHS

+	9	Charles Gallagher		This conference notes the tendency of PCTs to impose rigid, inflexible and inappropriate training requirements on GPs in such areas as cervical cytology and child protection. This conference believes that GPs have professional responsibility to ensure that their training needs are identified and adequately addressed, and that this process is impeded by PCT interference.
